SUBJECT: Operational Narrative For the Mission of January 4, 1944.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100th Bombardment Group (H), AAF.

1. Twenty-two aircraft, including one spare and one Pathfinder, aircraft #731, took off from this base at 0825 hours. Aircraft #42-31051 failed to take off due to supercharger trouble. The position of this ship, right wing, second element, high squadron was filled by aircraft #42-30062, which was originally scheduled as a spare. The group was assembled over the field at 0852 hours, altitude 2,000 feet, as briefed. The 13 A Combat Wing was assembled over Braintree, 0938½ hours, altitude 15,000 feet, as briefed. The 100th Group leading, 390B low, and 390 A high. The 13 A Combat Wing was the third combat wing in the air task force. The climb to bombing altitude was begun at 0957 hours 10 miles South of Norwich, to get over clouds. Bombing altitude was reached at 1138 hours, 54 degrees 20 minutes North, 07 degrees 15 minutes East. The enemy coast was crossed at 1201 hours. The route from the coast to the I.P. was uneventful. A sharp turn was made to the right shortly after the I.P. was reached, which disrupted the high group's formation. Evasive action was employed on the bomb run, and bombs were away at 1219 hours. Flak was seen here, but was meagre and inaccurate. The Rally Point was reached at 1223 hours, the combat wing in good formation. The enemy coast was re-crossed at 1245 hours. Descent was begun at 1259 hours, at 54 degrees 40 minutes North, 08 degrees 26 minutes East. The English Coast was crossed at 1429 hours at Burnham Market. Base was reached at 1452 hours and the lead aircraft landed at 1500 hours. The remainder of the group landed from 1444 to 1519 hours.

2. Aircraft not attacking: twenty-two aircraft left the base in formation, including one spare and one Pathfinder aircraft. Twenty-two aircraft were dispatched. Aircraft #4231066 flew with the 390 A Group and attacked the target. All of our aircraft returned.

Composite Group

1. Nine aircraft took off from this base from 0815 hours to 0821 hours. The assembly with the composite group was made over Norham after some difficulty in identifying the other squadrons. The route flown, with times, etc., is shown in the navigators' narrative and track chart. The position in the formation is shown on the accompanying formation charts.

2. The lead Pathfinder aircraft was hit by flak and aborted at 1155 hours. The 95th Group took the lead, turned in behind an unidentified combat wing and followed them to the target.

3. Aircraft not attacking: Nine aircraft left the base in formation, and nine aircraft were dispatched. Aircraft #42-30091 turned back at 1210 hours, 54 degrees 08 minutes North, 09 degrees 35 minutes East, altitude 32,900 feet, because of oxygen trouble. This aircraft dropped its bombs on a large city thought to be Groningen.

4. All aircraft in this group returned to base.

The following officer completed his operation tour of duty by completing his 25th mission.

HEADQUARTERS
ONE HUNDREDTH BOMBARDMENT GROUP (H), AAF
Office of the Operations Officer
APO # 634

SUBJECT: Operational Narrative, Nuess, Germany, January 5, 1944.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100th Bombardment Group (H), AAF.

1. Twenty-three aircraft took off from this base at 0800 hours, including two spares and two Pathfinder aircraft. The Group assembled over the field at 2,000 feet at 0830 hours except for the two squadron which was a few minutes late. The spares were flying above the high squadron. The 13th "B" Combat Wing assembly was made at 1022 hours at 21,000 feet over Splasher #6. The 100th "A" group led the 100th "B" Composite Group flying low. The 13th "B" Wing then flew in fair formation and rendezvoused with the 13th "A" Combat Wing. The air task force was assembled over Splasher #6 at 21,000 feet. The 13th "A" Combat Wing was identified by an exchange of flares, and we fell in behind.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun at 1025 hours on a magnetic heading of 90 degrees, 150 miles per hour (L.A.S.) and 300 feet per minute. The climb was made at 300 feet per minute rather than 200 feet, as briefed, in order to make up time due to a late start in the climb. Bombing altitude was reached at 1055 hours, at the enemy coast, the wing in good formation. The fighter cover was good.

The lead wing flew several miles West of the briefed course. Not knowing where they were going, the 13th "B" wing left the lead wing and continued toward the target. Before crossing the Rhine it was apparent that both the primary and secondary targets were obscured. We turned North to Nuess, and both pathfinder aircraft being out, the bombardier picked a factory in the northern part of Nuess, and bombed it. The 100th "A" Group was first over the target, 100th "B" composite group second.

The rally was good and the enemy coast was re-crossed at 1229 hours; the descent started the same time. The English coast was re-crossed at Lowestoft at 1305 hours. Home base was reached at 1314 hours. The lead aircraft landed at 1320 hours, the rest at 1348 hours.

2. Both pathfinder aircraft were out and both primary and secondary targets were overcast. Therefore, a target of opportunity was bombed.

3. Aircraft not attacking: Twenty-three aircraft left the base in formation, including two pathfinder aircraft and two spares. Spare aircraft #42-30061 turned back at 53 25 North, 01 56 East, time 1035 hours, altitude 22,000 feet. Twenty-two aircraft were dispatched. Spare aircraft #42-37800 aborted at 52 10 minutes North; 02 56 East, at 23,000 feet, time 1044 hours. Aircraft #42-30062 aborted at 1100 hours, 51 55 North; 03 00 East, altitude 22,000 feet.

100th Composite Group "B"

1. Six aircraft took off from this base from 0821 to 0825 hours. The group assembly was made as briefed. The Combat Wing assembly was made as shown in the preceding narrative, the 100th "B" Group flying low in the 13th "B" Combat Wing, the 100th "A" Group high. The 100th "B" Group followed the 100th "A" Group throughout the mission.

2. Not knowing the pathfinder equipment was out, the 100th "B" was unable to bomb on the lead aircraft and the bombs were safed at 50 05 North; 0610 East.

3. Six aircraft left this base in formation and six aircraft were dispatched. No aircraft are missing.

SUBJECT: Operational Narrative for Ludwigshafen Mission of Jan 7, 1944.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bomb GP, AAF.

1. General Narrative: The 100th Group formation took off at 0750 hours. By 0820 hours the Group formation had assembled over the field at 2,000 feet and proceeded to Splasher #6 rather than Splasher #5 as briefed. This was because of cloud cover at assembly altitude over Splasher #5. The 95th Group and the 390th Group were seen behind us here, and identified by an exchange of flares. However, when we turned to cross the coast at Frinton On Sea, the other two groups out across the East, and were not joined again until the Rally Point.

The 100th Group proceeded on course and joined an unidentified combat wing at Mid-Channel.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun at 1002½ hours at Frinton-on-Sea, and was made at 168 L.A.S., 300 to 400 feet per minute. The climb was made faster than the briefed time because of insufficient time. Bombing altitude was reached at 1100 hours. During the climb the Group formation was good. The enemy coast was crossed at 1035 hours.

The route from the enemy coast to the target was as briefed, except that bombing altitude was not reached until well past the enemy coast.

The 100 Group was the last of the B-17's over the target and was followed by B-24's.

After the bombing, rally was effected with the 95th and 390th Groups. The 95th Group led and the 390th flying high, and the Combat Wing Formation was poor all the way back.

The enemy coast was re-crossed at 1319 hours, and the descent was begun at the same time. The P-47 and P-51 fighter cover was excellent. The fighters were met just inside the enemy coast at 1042 hours and accompanied us as far as the enemy coast on the way out. The Group reached home base at 1424 hours and landed at 1427 to 1451 hours.

2. Aircraft Not Attacking: Twenty-four aircraft left the base in formation including three spares. Spare aircraft #42-30091 turned back at 1026 hours, altitude 20,000 feet, 51 45 North, 03 20 East because all groups had 21 aircraft in their formations. Twenty-four aircraft were dispatched.

Aircraft #42-3307 turned back at 0820 hours, altitude 3,000 feet, 52 13 North, 01 22 East because of mechanical trouble. He landed at 0858 hours and took off in aircraft #42-30091 at 0934 hours.

Aircraft #42-31051 turned back at 1005 hours, 14,000 feet, 53, 00 North, 01 48 East.

All of our aircraft returned to base.

HEADQUARTERS
ONE HUNDREDTH BOMBARDMENT GROUP (H) AAF
Office of the Operations Officer
APO #634

SUBJECT: Report of Mission of 11 January 1944 to Osnabruck.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bomb Group, (H), AAF.

1. General Narrative: The main 100th Group formation took off at 0836 hours. By 0900 hours the group formation had assembled at 52 24 North, 01 20 East, altitude 2,500 feet and proceeded to Buncher #11, arriving 12 minutes early at 1020 hours. The route out was as briefed except that all of 95 "B" Group was not picked up until the Rally after bombing. The 13th Combat Wing was on course, ten miles West of Minden when the recall was received. We made a 180 degree turn and bombed Osnabruck with P.F.F. and returned to the briefed course at Lingon. The briefed course was followed on to the base.

Home base was reached at 1421 hours: landed at 1428 hours.

2. Aircraft Not Attacking: Twenty-four aircraft departed this base at 0900 hours, including three spares and one PFF aircraft.

Aircraft #42-3307 turned back at 1035 hours, five miles East of Lowestoft at 16,000 feet. Aircraft #42-39867 turned back at 1039 hours, 52 28 North 0230 East, altitude 13,000 feet. Twenty-two aircraft were dispatched.

No aircraft were lost on this mission.

3. Composite Group Squadron: The 100th Group Squadron took off at 0821 hours. By 0835 hours the 95th "B" group formed and assembled over Horham at 3,000 feet except for the 390th squadron. The group proceeded to Buncher #11, arriving at 1020 hours, where the 390th was picked up, flying high squadron. The 95th "B" group then proceeded to Buncher #8, with the lead aircraft at 19,000 feet. The group was echeloned out in a loose formation because of the weather.

The rendezvous with the 13th Combat Wing was missed because of the unfavorable weather. However, the 13th Combat Wing was seen ahead at about midchannel and was followed to the Rally Point.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun at Horham at 0850 hours, and was made at 150 L.A.S and 300 feet per minute. At 1020 hours the formation levelled out at 19,000 feet as briefed. After a few minutes, we descended to 17,000 feet, then levelled off at 1036 hours. The English Coast was crossed at 1034 hours. After about five minutes we resumed our climb at the same rate. Bombing altitude was reached at 1136 hours. The enemy coast was crossed at 1122 hours.

The route from the enemy coast to the target was as briefed until the mission was recalled. The 13th Combat Wing leader choose Osnabruck as a target of opportunity and bombed it. The 95th "B" Group followed the 13th Combat Wing and bombed Herford; the 100th Group "quadron bombed on the 95 "B" group leader. The 95 "B" group was lost over the target.

After the bombing the rally was effected with the 13th Combat Wing.

At 1320 hours, before recrossing the enemy coast the descent was begun at 170 I.A.S. and 500 feet per minute. The hight fighter cover was good, but there were not enough fighters, as we had some ME 210 attacks. The withdrawal fighter support was met at 1237 hours at about 52 31 North, 07 50 East and accompanied us as far as 52 20 North, 05 30 East. The group reached home base at 1421 hours and landed from 1427 to 1434 hours.

Six aircraft left this base in formation. Five aircraft were dispatched.

Aircraft #42-30061 turned back over Lowestoft at 1030, altitude 19,000 feet.

All of our aircraft returned.

Office of the Operations Officer
APO # 634

SUBJECT: Operational Narrative of Mission to targets in France 14 Jan 1944.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bomb Group (H) AAF

1. Twenty-three aircraft, including two spares, took off from this base at 1325 hours. By 1343 hours the group had assembled over the field at 2,000 feet, the spares flying above the group, which was in very good formation.

Although the 100th Group was supposed to be leading the Air Division no one was seen behind us.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun over the base at 1347 hours, 300 feet per minute, 150 L.A.S. Bombing altitude was reached at 1450 hours with the group flying a good, tight formation. The enemy coast was crossed at 1527 hours. Fighter cover was excellent.

The route from the enemy coast to the target was flown as briefed, and the target was reached one minute early. Bombs were away at 1533 hours, the target being attacked by squadrons. The lead squadron was first over the target, low squadron second, and the high squadron last.

There was no rally; the group returning to base in squadron formation.

The enemy coast was recrossed at 1558 hours at Ault, the descent being started at the same place. The English Coast was recrossed at Hastings at 1616 hours at 6,000 feet. Base was reached at 1657 hours, the lead aircraft landing at 1701 hours, the rest of the group landing at 1728 hours.

2. Aircraft not attacking: Twenty-three aircraft left this base in formation, including two spares. Twenty-three aircraft were dispatched and attacked the target. Aircraft #426087 and 42-37790 attacked the target with the 94th Group flying in the positions on the formation charts.

No aircraft were lost.

The following-named Officers completed their 25th mission.

SAM L. BARR, O-791275, Captain
HOWARD D. FASSETT, O-731249, Captain

SUBJECT: Operational Narrative, Targets in France, January 21, 1944.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bomb Group (H) AAF.

1. The 100th "A" Group formation took off at 1205 hours. By 1235 hours the Group formation had assembled over the field at 2,000 feet in a fair formation.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun over the field and made on three legs. One to the East from the field, the second, West to Brandon, and the third, to Splasher #7. The climb was made at 150 miles per hour L.A.S. at 200 feet per minute, as requested by the navigator. Bombing altitude was reached at 1355 hours, the Group formation good. The enemy coast was crossed at 1429 hours, as briefed.

The route from the enemy coast to the target was as briefed. No fighter support was seen by the lead aircraft. Flak at the target was very accurate. From 20 to 100 bursts were seen and six aircraft in the lead squadron were hit, the lead ship being hit about 30 seconds before bombs away and once 2 seconds before bombs away.

There was no rally, the group returning in squadron formations.

The enemy coast was recrossed at 1450 hours, and the descent was begun at the same time. The English coast was recrossed at Dover at 1506 hours. Home base was reached at 1542 hours, the lead aircraft landing at 1545 hours, the remainder of the group landing by 1639 hours.

2. Aircraft #42-38059 was scheduled to fly with "A" Group, but because of trouble, took off late, and attacked the target with the 100th "B" Group.

3. Aircraft Not Attacking: Twenty* aircraft left this base in formation at 1235 hours. Twenty aircraft were dispatched and all aircraft attacked the target. None of our aircraft are missing.

The following enlisted men completed their 25th mission.

SUBJECT: Mission of 21 January 1944 against Targets in France.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bombardment Group (H) AAF.

1. The 100th "B" Group formation took off at 1219 hours. By 1247 hours the group formation had assembled over the base at 2,000 feet as briefed, in good formation.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun at the home field on course to Splasher #6, at 1247 hours at 300 feet per minute, 150 M.P.H. indicated air speed. Bombing altitude was reached at 1430 hours, and the enemy coast was crossed at 1434 hours, 50 30 North, 01 36 East.

The route from the enemy coast to the I.P. and the target was as briefed. There was considerable difficulty in picking up the target because of cloud cover. A 40 second bomb run was made, the lead squadron first, low second, and high squadron third.

Fighter cover was very good; however, very accurate flak was encountered at the target.

The enemy coast was recrossed at 1456 hours at 50 30 North, 01 36 East, and the descent was begun at the same time. The English Coast was recrossed at 1508 hours at Dungeness. Home base was reached at 1555 hours and the lead aircraft landed at 1559. The rest of the group had landed by 1632 hours.

2. Twenty-two aircraft left this base in formation at 1247 hours. Twenty-two aircraft were dispatched. Six aircraft failed to bomb after making two runs because of poor visibility.

Of all our aircraft attacking, not one is missing.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bomb Gp. (H) AAF.

1. Sixteen aircraft took off from this base at 0701 hours, including one spare and one pathfinder aircraft. By 0730 the Group had assembled over the field. The 13th "B" Combat Wing rendezvous was made at 0825 hours over Splasher #6 at 11,000 feet, the 100th "A" Group leading, 100 "B" Group Flying low.

The route was the same, from here on, as the 100th "B" Group.

The 100th "A" Group reached home base at 1205 hours, the PFF aircraft going to Alconbury, and the rest of the Group landing from 1217 to 1258 hours.

2. Aircraft Not Attacking: Fifteen aircraft departed this base in formation, including one Pathfinder aircraft, and one spare. Sixteen aircraft were dispatched.

Spare aircraft #42-38018 turned back at 1010 hours, 51 50 North, 01 37 East, altitude 24,000 feet.

There are no aircraft missing from 100th "A" Group.

SUBJECT: Operational Narrative, January 24, 1944, "B" Group.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bomb Group (H), AAF.

1. The 100th "B" Group formation took off at 0713 hours. By 0743 hours the Group formation had assembled over the field at 2100 feet, with the exception of the 390th low squadron. The group then started climbing early and climbed to 11,000 feet, circling Splasher #6, then East to the coast, and back to the field on a heading of 309 degrees. We then leveled off and flew a heading of 250 degrees, trailing the 100th "A" Group and 390th Group. We made a 360 degree turn, then 180 degree turn and the 390th low squadron fell in position, the lead aircraft still at 11,000 feet. The Combat Wing rendezvous was made at 0852 hours over splasher #6 at 11,000 feet. The 100th "A" Group leading, 100th "B" Group flying low in good formation. The climb was started again at 160 L.A.S., 200 feet per minute. We leveled off again at 16,000 feet over Stowmarket. At 0925 hours the climb was resumed. The briefed bombing altitude was not reached, but we leveled off at 22,500 feet at 1019 hours. The formation was strung out from the time the last climb was started until the French Coast was reached, when it was tightened up.

At Ostend some accurate flak was seen, however there were no enemy fighters. The fighter cover was perfect. The recall was received and verified at 1030 hours.

We turned and started back at 1031 hours. The descent was begun at approximately 5242 North, 05 05 East at 1035 hours. The enemy coast was recrossed at 1127 hours and the English Coast was recrossed at 1149 hours, one mile north of Felixstowe. Home base was reached at 1158 hours and the lead aircraft landed at 1248 hours. The rest of the group had landed from 1208 to 1254 hours.

Suggest that lead groups stay at briefed altitude.

Aircraft Not Attacking: Nineteen aircraft left this base in formation at 0743 hours. Nineteen aircraft were dispatched.

Aircraft #42-30756 turned back at 1014 hours at 22,000 feet over Brussels.

Aircraft #42-3307 crashed at approximately 0720 hours 8 miles West of the base, cause undetermined. This aircraft was not reported in the aircraft leaving base in formation.

SUBJECT: Mission to Frankfort, 29 January 1944.

TO : Commanding Officer, 100 Bombardment Group (H) AAF.

1. General Narrative: The 100th "B" Group formation took off at 0651 hours. By 0830 hours the Group formation had assembled over Splasher #6 at 12,000 feet. The group circled and picked up the 100th "A" Group which was flying the low position. The 13th "B" Combat Wing arrived at Splasher #6 at 0914 hours, with the lead aircraft at 21,000 feet and the rest of the Combat Wing in good formation.

There was at first some doubt as to the identity of the 13th "A" Combat Wing, but their identity was established by VHF and by an exchange of flares; the 13th "B" Combat Wing swung in behind the 13th "A" Combat Wing.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun at 0945 hours at about 51 35 North, 01 48 East, and was made at 151 I.A.S. and 200 feet per minute. At 1005 hours the formation leveled out at 24,000 feet. After about 47 minutes we resumed our climb at the same rate. Bombing altitude was reached at 1055 hours. During the climb the Combat Wing Formation was ttrung out a little, but after we reached bombing altitude the Combat Wing got ina tight formation. The enemy coast was c crossed at 0957 hours.

The route from the enemy coast to the target was as briefed. The 100th "B" was the first over the target and was followed by the 100th "A" Gp.

After the bombing, rally was effected in Combat Wing formation and on the way back the Combat Wing formation was good.

The enemy coast was recrossed at 1247 hours. Fighter cover was very good. It was first seen at 1010 hours about 51 57 North, 02 50 East, and accompanied us as far as the enemy coast on the route out. The Group reached home base at 1326 hours and landed at 1334 to 1405 hours.

2. We recrossed the English coast at 1311 hours.

3. It is recommended that night take-offs be stopped.

Aircraft 42-30061 and aircraft 42-30278 were scheduled to fly with the 100th "B" Group, but filled in with the 100th "A" Group as shown on the accompanying charts.

4. Aircraft Not Attacking: Nineteen aircraft left this base in formation, including one PFF aircraft. Eighteen aircraft were dispatched.

Aircraft #42-37790 turned back over Splasher #6 at 0800 hours, altitude 12,000 feet. #42-37975 turned back at 0956 hours at 51 31 North, 02 22 East, altitude 22,000 feet.

100th "A" Group Formation.

1. General Narrative: The 100th "A" Group formation took off at 0630 hours. By 0809 hours, the 100th "A" Group formation was assembled at 14,000 feet. For the narrative from this point on, the narrative is the same as the "B" Group.

2. Aircraft Not Attacking: Twenty aircraft left this base in formation. Seventeen aircraft were dispatched.

Aircraft #42-37972 turned back at 0812 hours, 52 07 North, 01 10 East, altitude 15,000 feet. #4237796 turned back at 0925 hours, 52 12 North, 01 20 East, altitude 23,000 feet. #42-31249 turned back at 0916 hours, 52 18 North 01 16 East, altitude 21,800 feet. These aircraft were not dispatched.

Aircraft #42-31502 crashed just West of the field after take-off, at approximately 0632 hours. The cause is not determined.

1. General Narrative, 100th "A" Group: The 100th "A" Group took off at 0815 hours. By 0842 hours the group had formed over the base at 3,000 feet. For assembly of the Combat Wing proceeded to Lowestoft.

The climb to bombing altitude was begun at 1050 hours near Lowestoft. Bombing altitude was reached at 1207 hours at 52 11 North, 09 05 East, with the Combat Wing in good formation.

The descent to 21,000 feet was begun at 1233 hours at 52 31 North, 10 12 East. The enemy coast was recrossed at approximately 1410 hours. The English Coast was recrossed at 1434½ hours. Base was reached at 1443; the lead aircraft proceeded to Alconbury, landing at 1511 hours.

2. Aircraft Not Attacking: Twenty-one Aircraft departed this base in formation at 0825 hours. This includes one Pathfinder aircraft. Eighteen aircraft were dispatched.

Aircraft #42-37972 turned back at 0845 hours, at 2,000 feet over England, and crash landed at Honington. Aircraft #42-30380 turned back at 0830 hours at 54 21 North, 0110 East at 2,000 feet. Aircraft #42-39830 turned back at 0935 hours at 52 36 North, 01 40 East, altitude 6,000 feet. These aircraft were not dispatched.

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England ----- Captain ~~John H. Mitchell~~, 27, of McPherson, Kansas, has completed his operational tour as an Eighth AAF Flying Fortress pilot, but the ship which carried him safely through many savage air battles, the veteran Fortress, "Hard Luck" carries on with a different pilot and a newer crew.

Pilot Mitchell, clicked off thirteen rugged bombing runs in the "Hard Luck", a ship named after the hoodoo, in honor of the thirteens that clustered about the fortress -- which Captain Mitchell had brought to England on Friday, August 13th 1943.

Mitchell participated in bombing attacks on Paris, Watten, Bordeaux, Vannes, Emden, Frankfurt, Schweinfurt, Bremen, all of them savagely fought battles which took their toll. Later, one of those personnel shuffles which occur every now and then, gave the Hard Luck a new crew and gave Pilot Mitchell, a new ship. After all "Hard Luck" was an unusual ship, --- and still is --- for she is still operating with the original four engines and superchargers that carried her across the Atlantic, 'way back when Captain Mitchell was sweating out his first operational flight.

Most memorable of all of Capt. Mitchell's daylight deliveries of bombs was the Eighth AAF bombing of Duren, Germany, early last November, for that was his thirteenth mission. That thirteenth trip into the flak and fighter area always stands out as a hurdle in a combat flier's career, and men of less sterner stuff than Capt Mitchell sometimes evade the issue by labelling the hoodoo mission as "12-B". But Mitchell was not one to equivocate, with his crew he rode out to dispersal area thirteen where his ship was parked. They climbed into the "Hard Luck" took off, dropped their bombs at the right place and came back with a few flak holes here and there but with their ardor undampened.

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England, -- Second Lt Frank A. Granack, 23, of 1217 - 169th St, Hammond, Indiana an Eighth AAF Flying Fortress Pilot ran into a curtain of flak in his recent trip to the Pas de Calais region of Occupied France and came home with his number four engine feathered and 47 varieties of flak holes in his wings, tail and fuselage.

Members of his crew gave Pilot Granack credit for a very fine bit of flying and their admiration is not unmixed with a degree of wonderment that it was possible to fly their ship at all.

In the first place the flak hit the number four engine, damaging it so much that it will have to be replaced. Another burst of jagged metal ripped into the right outer wing panel of the ship and still another piece of metal punched a hole through the big bomb bay dorsal fin. Aside from that there was some damage to the fuselage, a mere matter of holes puncturing the body of the ship at intervals too close to be comfortable. No one was hurt by the flying metal and Pilot Granack himself summed the whole matter up by stating at interrogation that his ship had been seriously damaged by flak. That was all.

There was the matter of the bombs that were dropped on the target, despite the anti-aircraft fire coming up from the German batteries thousands of feet below. Then too there was the additional factor of a nice landing with a crippled ship. Wear and tear on human nerves doesn't count, besides crews get used to that after they have been operational for a while. Nobody gets enthusiastic over it but they endure it say nothing about it.

[REDACTED]

Lt. Granack and his crew were not new-comers to the battle area. They had been out before, but they agreed that the Pas de Calais brand of flak is something rather special, and they should know.

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- Forst Lt. Richard B. Elliott 24, of Marion, Indiana, a former Blue Print-Specification Expert, has completed his operational tour as a flying fortress bombardier with the Eighth AAF in England.

As bombardier on one of the ships that has been steadily softening up the German Reich, Lt Elliott can lay claim to having helped draw up the blue-prints for victory over the axis.

Probably one of the most grueling experiences of his combat career was a bombing assault on Gelsenkirchen, Germany, last November when flak billowing up out of the iron cities of the German, Ruhr, ripped off the trim tabs on Bombardier Elliotts ship, Nine Little Yanks And A Jerk" and killed the radio operator.

Most of the flak hit the ship just before the bombs away, according to the pilot, 1st Lt Robert L Hughes, 25, of Walla Walla Washington. One fragment knifed through the side of the radio compartment and by a bitter freak of irony, it hit the radio operator, T/Sgt Joseph F. Boylem 23, just above his flak vest. The flak danced downwards through the radio operators lungs and killed him instatly. Other flak sprinkled Elliott's ship with twelve to fourteen large holes, but fortunately did not knock out the engines.

Despite the moral and physeical handicap imposed by anti-aircraft batteries that ringed the target areas below, Bomb. Elliott kept his eye glued to his sight, fiddleâ with the adjustments and when he had a perfect bead, let go.

Lt Elliott has been awarded the Air Medal and three Oak Leaf
Clâsters and has been recommended for the DFC.

~~SECRET~~
AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- S/Sgt James I. Hiten, 20 of Lexington, Ky. youthful veteran of some of the fiercest air battles of all time, has completed his tour of operations as a right waistunner on the Flying Fortress, "Torchy" II.

During the course of his combat career as a member of one of the Eighth AAF Heavy Bomb Groups, S/Sgt Hiten has participated in the daring daylight bombing attacks in which the AAF has pinpointed German bases which were hitherto unapproachable.

Most memorable of all the sergeant's experiences were those he will recall in after years as having been associated with the famous Regensburg shuttlebombing. In this all out attack which destroyed a German Messerschmitt production center hidden deep in the Nazi Hinterland, near Munich, Hiten's ship bombed the target then flew over the Alps, across Italy, over the Mediterranean to land for refueling and re-arming on the North African Coast. During the mission, Hiten estimated that members of his crew shot down and destroyed at least three German fighters and damaged and probably destroyed other.

On the return leg of the Regensburg attack, the "Torchy II" and other ships of the same group flew over the Pyrenees Mountains and dropped a second load of bombs on a German airdrome at Bordeaux in France. Then tired with the long run hungry and bearing many bruises as evidence of fierce evasive action in their twenty-five ton "thunderbird" S/Sgt Hiten and his fellow crew members stepped again on the green turf of the English base. History had been made but what was more important, it had been made in the right way, thru a victorious assault on the enemy.

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- "Alice From Dallas", and Eighth AAF Flying Fortress was knocked off her bombing run, had her left rudder shot up, two engines knocked out and all the engine controls smashed by flak that wounded her pilot captain M D DeSaunders
23, of Dallas, Texas and his cockpit partner, Major Albert M Elton 27, of Atlanta, Ga. during a recent visit to the Pas de Calais section of Occupied France.

Major Elton, who occupied the co-pilot's seat while flying as Combat Wing Leader had a close call when the flak started pouring into the bomber. The Major was not wearing a flak vest when "Alice From Dallas" started out on her mission. Noticing that the flak was getting a bit thick, Elton leaned down and picked up a flak vest which he spread over his lap, unfurling the flexible steel garment upwards to cover his chest. The about two pounds of German metal crashed through the side of the cockpit and nestled with a resounding thump and considerable force against the Major's chest.
As the Major said later: "That was the luckiest pick-up I ever made.

While all this was happening, Pilot DeSaunders, whose home is at 405 Fairfax St., Dallas, was having his own troubles.

"I got hit in the right leg by the flak" DeSaunders said.
"Another chunk of the stuff cut my seat right in back of me. For a little while I thought I had caught a bad one. "Bucky" (Major Elton) had a mess of glass fragments blown into his right eye so that he couldn't see out of it, in fact he still can't and he ought to be up at the hospital instead of down here at interrogation."

"Anyway" interrupted Major Elton, "we dropped our bombs. We lost one engine outright, then a second went out on us. The other two engines were still going but we couldn't control them-- the engine controls were hit. The control cables were dangling down in the cock-pit like streamers of confetti at a Mardi Gras. There wasn't much left of the instrument panel. When we landed, we had no control over the engines at all."

"It sure was thick up there today" summed up DeSanders, a veteran of many a rough air battle.

A ground officer standing nearby overheard the conversation and approached the two pilots. "Tell me", he said, "how in the hell did you manage to land at all?"

"Frankly", cracked the Major, "I don't know."

[REDACTED]

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- When the veteran crewmen returned to this base they said that Valesh wouldn't be back. They saw his fort, "Hang the Expense Again" get its entire tail shot off. "It must have crashed inside enemy territory," they said. So another Eighth AAF Flying Fortress was marked as missing on the records.

But hours later the records had to be changed. "Hang the Expense Again" was back. It got back with the entire tail gunner's compartment blown off, with the left elevator completely gone, with less than half of a right elevator, with just a tiny piece of the rudder left at the top with all the hand control cables shot away, and with a hole thru the number two engine. It got back to England, landed at an RAF field, and came down on a perfect three-point landing.

It came back because the pilot, 2nd Lt. Frank E. Valesh, 23, of 2017 Dayton Ave., St. Paul, Minn., knew how to handle a battered bomber. Earlier in the month he had made three crash landings without injuring a crewman.

But this time the pilot came back without his tail gunner. No one knows what happened to him. No one reported seeing a chute. A direct hit separated his compartment from the bomber.

"When that flak hit us" said the right waist Gunner, S/Sgt Herschel M. Broyles, 21, of 710 Gillespie Rd, Chattanooga, Tenn. "it felt as if somebody hit me in the stomach with a plank." The Waist gunner was blown the hole length of the fuselage and picked himself up near the ball turret.

"Everything down below hit us, at once, added the pilot. "Just ten seconds before, my navigator (2nd Lt John R. Johnson) had yelled "Here it comes!"

SECRET

And when the flak did come it hit the tail of the bomber. "I found my hand controls were gone," Valesh said, "So I snapped on the automatic pilot. There was enough tail surface left to straighten us out after we had reared up all at once and out of control into a steep climb."

By that time "Hang the Expense Again" was out of formation, over enemy territory, an easy target for enemy fighters.

I sent out an SOS for fighter protection," said pilot Valesh. "And just then a thin voice came over my radio, 'What the hell do you think we are?' I looked out and damned if the air wasn't full of P-47's."

Valesh ordered the crew to toss overboard all equipment, and losing altitude the bruised bomber flopped its way across the English Channel and headed for the nearest base, with worried Thunderbolts hovering around. The first field found was a fighter base getting ready to take in its returning planes, so Valesh was asked to seek another landing spot. "I went over to a nearby field, but could not raise them on the radio," he said, "so one of my fighter pals went in ahead and kept buzzing the runway to keep it clear for us."

With the eight other crewmen huddled in the radio room in preparation for a crash landing, the pilot brought the bomber in. "I managed to set her down on the wheels okay," he grinned.

As the crew surveyed the badly damaged plane, Valesh remarked, "I'm getting damned tired of this," And the crew agreed with him.

MONTHLY SUMMARY

BOMBING ACCURACY

Of the nine missions credited during the month of January 1944 only three produced bombing by visual means. One of the other six was recalled and though credited with a sortie the airplanes did no bombing. Five missions were pathfinder lead and their results somewhat uncertain.

On January 4 Kiel was bombed behind the pathfinder through 10/10 overcast and though there were no visual results at the time of the mission subsequent PRU classified it successful. On January 5 the pathfinder became inoperative, the primary and secondary targets were found obscured; so a target of opportunity was selected. The main group picked a factory at Neuss, Germany, which was later identified as the Bauer & Schaurte metal factory. The bombing was excellent in spite of heavy flak a numerous direct hits were observed. This was the only group that did successful bombing that day. The composite group did not know that the Pathfinder was out due to insufficient information from the main group and thus failed to bomb Neuss. Bombs were jettisoned inside Germany at 51 05 N - 06 10 E. They were seen to fall in field near a small village.

Both Ludwigshaven January 7th and Osnabruck January 11th were pathfinder missions with bombs being dropped manually on pathfinder signals. Osnabruck was a target of opportunity, the formation having received recall and the leader selecting that target for bombing.

On January 14th and 21st following were two "Crossbow" missions on targets in Northwestern France. The first presented good bombing due to excellent visibility. Center of the installation was used as the aiming point, and ABC, C-2, and AFCE were used as bombing aids. Bombing was done by squadrons, one pattern falling slightly short. The January 21 mission found a 5/10 to 6/10 overcast which made the target hard to pick up. Bombs were away only about a minute after aiming point was picked up.

The mission of January 24 was recalled and all the bombs were either jettisoned or returned. Followed two missions, one to Frankfort January 29, the other to Brunswick January 30, which were both pathfinder missions, both through 10/10 overcast, both results unobserved.

TACTICAL

As in the other winter months the weather was the governing operational factor for January. Nine missions were credited. Of these two were actually recalled before the target was reached, though one of the two resulted in some excellent bombing of a target of opportunity. Six missions were briefed and then scrubbed due to the weather. And of the nine run six were pathfinder.

On the January missions however the 100th Bomb Group put more aircrafts and crews in the air then ever before. With the crews that came in around the first of December reaching the point of operational experience where the group could put two groups in the air at a time, for the first time there was the 100th "A" and 100 "B" Groups. Four of the nine missions during the month were supplied thus. In three missions we supplied a squadron for a composite formation, and on only two missions were we called on for only one group. This is a far cry from the two group formations that used to carry the battle into Germany in the early summer of 1943.

Losses due to enemy action during January were non-existent. The group did loose the Bombardier of one crew and all except the pilot, co-pilot, and engineer, of another one in two night take-offs before operational missions. The severest of the accidents was caused by lighting failure and pilots inability to read the instrument panel shortly after getting into the air. The other was due to another aircraft, which was not identified, but which forced the pilot to take violent evasive action to miss a mid-air crash. Early morning take-offs in the dark was the biggest operational problem of the month.

TECHNICAL PROBLEMS

All aircraft abortions can be laid to one or a combination of three reasons, that is, either one or a combination of failure due to material, maintenance, or personnel. Of the aircraft that take off on any given mission from this base an average of 8% will turn back due to material failure, 2% due to maintenance fault, and 6% either to personnel sickness or misjudgement. Some months, of course, the % is not so high, in recent months it hasn't been, but over the entire period that is the average.

During the month of January the chief causes of material failure were propeller governors, supercharger regulators, and oil temperature regulators. The chief maintenance fault is the improper flushing of supercharger and ballast and pressure lines. Also prominent is the neglect or improper timing of propeller governor dump valve. Personnel failures would list sickness, oxygen failure due to personal carelessness, and failure to find the formation. The new needle type dump valves may cut down on the prop governor trouble, and the electronic supercharger regulator have cut abortives due to spercharger a great deal.

Another inovation which is now nearly standard in all the aircraft are the enclosed waistgun and radio gun positions. This has done much to cut down suffering and keep the cold from freezing masks.

Supplies are moving in fast now. It is a far cry from the early summer days when plans were kept in the air by sending expeditions to the salvage pile.

The problem of personal strain can be realized when it is considered that while the strength of aircraft and combat crews have doubled on this station, the number of ground personnel servicing the aircraft has slightly decreased. With the group now putting two group formations in the air, the T/O strength remains the same on the ground.

EQUIPMENT

The equipment office has been pushed during the month making modifications on the life rafts per tech instructions from the 8th Air Force Service Command. The work has required setting up of an extra department to handle the work and has placed an extra burden on the personnel who as yet aren't even recognized on the T/O as a department. The men working under the base equipment officer at present are men from the tech supply of each squadron and several sub depot noncoms. That a T/O with ratings should be set up for this department is a matter of some stress.

The modifications being done on the Life Rafts include adding rope ladders, stabilizing pockets, turnover handles, removing one of the two thwarts and moving the remaining one nearer the center.

The shortage of electrical equipment still exists though it has been greatly eased by the program of collecting flying clothing from unauthorized persons. Flying clothing other than electrical has been turned back into tech supplies for reissue to authorized individuals since the equipment office has issued to flying and ground officers the british battle jacket for wear around the station.

Necessitated also is a minor modification on the A-2 parachute consisting of sewing an extra lip of material on the pack to keep the corner of the canopy from poking out. British helmets in numbers have been issued so that every flying officer or enlisted man has proper headgear.

AWARDS, HQ EIGHTH AIR FORCE

Per Par 1, General Order 1, Hq 8th AF, dated 3 January 1944, the SILVER STAR is awarded to the following named Officer and Enlisted Men.

ROBERT ROSENTHAL, O-792349, 1st Lt, AAF. For gallantry in action, WHILE serving as Pilot of a B-17 airplane on a bombing mission over Germany, 10 October 1943. Prior to reaching the objective one engine of his aircraft was knocked out and other serious damage sustained during vicious assaults by enemy fighters. Though subjected to constant attack and intense anti-aircraft fire, Lt Rosenthal continued on to the target and bombed it successfully. When unable to remain with the formation on leaving the target area, his aircraft became the object of concentrated attacks by enemy planes. Another engine was knocked out, the oxygen system almost completely destroyed the wing badly damaged and two gunners seriously wounded. Maneuvering his aircraft with great skill he brought it back and made a safe landing. From New York.

NELSON R. KING, 17064928, Tech Sgt, AAF. As Radio Operator and gunner on a mission over Germany 29 November 1943, Sgt King found the Ball Turret Gunner unconscious. During a lull in the fighter attacks, King pulled the gunner out put his own oxygen

Mask on his face. When the gunner regained consciousness he was hysterical and immediately tore off the oxygen mask and began to hit Sgt King. King tied the mask on his comrade and held him down until he had become quiet. Later the co-pilot found King unconscious from lack of oxygen and his hands badly frost-bitten as he had removed his gloves in order to tie the mask on the ball turret gunner. From Kansas.

LOREN F. DARLING, 17067964, Staff Sgt, AAF. Gallantry in action as Waist Gunner on mission 10 October 1943. While enemy fighters were viciously attacking, a 20 MM cannon shell exploded in the waist section of the plane severely wounding Sgt Darling who remained at his gun till he dropped to the floor exhausted from shock and over-exertion. After receiving emergency first aid he assisted the navigator in locating an airfield which was extremely difficult due to heavy fog. From Iowa.

G.O #4,5 Headquarters 8th AF.

G.O #7, the DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS is awarded to JOHN E. CALLAHAN JR, 31164984, Tech Sgt, AAF. On a mission over Germany 30 November 1944, Sgt Callahan, noting that the ball turret gunner had been seriously wounded, took him to the radio compartment, administered to him, gave his oxygen mask and through his own gallant action saved the life of his wounded comrade.

G.O #9, 19 Headquarters 8th AF.

AIRCRAFT ACCIDENTS

On 24 January 1944 at 0714 hours an B-17 F piloted by 1st Lt Arch J. Drummond took off toward the West on runway 28 this station on an operational mission. Lt Drummond held a straight course and at approximately 200 feet altitude the co-pilot saw another aircraft approaching from the South at the same altitude. He flashed the landing lights; all lights on the airplane had been on since the take-off was in total darkness. Lt. Drummond dove down and turned right to avoid the other plane and levelled off at what he thought was safe altitude. His left wing struck a barn and the ship crashed to a stop in the field beyond.

In the crash fire started in the left wing and set off the incendiaries resulting in the complete demolition of the aircraft. Killed in the crash was 2nd Lt Maurice G. Zetlan, O-677002, the bombardier. All other members survived without serious injury.

The Aircraft Accident Board found the cause of the accident the evasive action which dove the plane into the ground. The pilot took precaution in alerting the crew of the danger and the board considered the evasive action normal.

On January 26, 1944, at 1009 hours, a P-17F aircraft returning from a flight to salvoe delayed action bombs crashed in landing causing moderate damage to the ship. None of the crew were injured.

Lt John F. Massol, the pilot, made a normal approach, but levelled out too high. The plane lost flying speed before it could settle into landing position. The result was that it mushed in striking the runway with the left wheel first. The left retracting screw broke causing the left landing gear to collapse. The plane swerved off the runway and came to rest in the dirt.

There was damage to 1 & 2 propellers, left outer wing panel, ball turret, and sudden stoppage of 1 & 2 engines.

The Aircraft Accident Board was unable to determine whether the prime cause of the accident was the landing or mechanical failure.

Three miles west of this field in the black of early morning on 29 January 1944 an aircraft from the 100th Bomb Group crashed exploded burned and left in its ashes seven of its crewmen.

Leaving the runway at 0630 hours Lt Lloyd C. Marks' ship was the second to be airborne for the mission. Though black at 630 visibility was three miles, ceiling was 400 feet (weather station had reported 1,400 feet). Ship 502 got off nicely but at 300 feet while the wheels were retracting, the fluorescent lights went out. Without use of lights Lt. Marks controlled the ship unable to see instruments. Shortly afterward he crashed in the trees and though three miles from the field he could be seen clearly from the tower. Crash truck, ambulances, and doctors were sent. But after it had hit the bomb load exploded and there was little left of the plane.

Of the crew Pilot Lt. Marks, Co-pilot Lt Lundholm, and Engineer Sgt Anderson escaped with severe burns. Those killed in the crash were:

Powell, Richard A.	2nd Lt	0-808136
DeGregorio, Albert L	T/Sgt	39091689
Makowski, Joseph A	T/Sgt	35363717
Challoner, Charles H	S/Sgt	31208953
Scheier, Raymond J.	S/Sgt	13046543
Silvani, Joseph C.	S/Sgt	12039960
Dean, Robert N.	S/Sgt	15117699

The Board investigating the crash could only recommend that during night take-offs, the co-pilot should hold flashlight in his hand in event of electrical breakdown.

TRAINING

GROUND SCHOOL

During the month of January only three new crews arrived in the group so that the burden of previous months was not felt so much in ground school. With the great bulk of Decembers new crews well along on their operational tour of duty, with losses for January due to enemy action nil, the rush job of training must be considered adequat.

There were several inovations in training started during the month. A one hour practice session of ditching drill was put into the schedule of each combat crewman. The airplane itself was u sed as the classroom and the combat men went through the ditching proceedure so that they wouldn't mess up in the clutch. In connection with this an exhibit of the British type airborne lifeboat was brought here. Dropped by air planes of the sea rescue the boat is motor propelled and dro ped by parachute. .

The G Box film was back for another showing to all bombardier and navigators. The gunnery department stressed again in lectures the tactics and amneuvrs of the German fighter pilot. Emphas-ized also was the Bombardier's navigation course and also a course in coastal identification for Navigators and Bombardiers.

A very interesting exhibit for combat crewmen and any one else who might be interested was brought to the b se by a mobile unite and shown for several days. It included all German uniforms and their equipment and was designed to aid in recognizing German soldiers services and rank.

Ground Defense

In view of the coming crisis, the invasion, the probable desperation of the enemy, a meeting of all officers was held to discuss and formulate the function of departments and individuals in the Station Defense plan and to revise that if necessary. Recent changes in personnel and organization on this base has so upset the defense teams which operated a few months ago that certain minor changes in the plan were evidenced.

It is felt that bombardment is going to play such a strategic part in the covering clearing the path for the coming invasion that it was not beyond reason that the enemy might be willing to sacrifice numbers of airborne units to cripple the bombing threat at its roots. Further study of the existing defenses of this station suggest that the enemy would not be necessarily sacrificing anything in doing the job. It was seen that it would be perfectly conceivable for the enemy to land, wipe out the little organized opposition, destroy, hold the runway until transport could land and take them off. It was conceivable and yet it wouldn't be if use were made of the defensive strength both in personnel and weapons that are at our disposal. Failing to do

SO would reflect neglect and risk the lives unnecessarily of those on this station. Hence the present Defense plan was evolved. Attached herto is the present plan. It represents improvement over the old one in that it makes better use of the guns available, particualrly those on the aircraft, which can be removed from the planes and fired from mounts at the handstandings, provides for better observation and sniper posts, and contracts for all around better troop disposition.

ANNEX NO. 1

SUBJECT: Ground Defense Plan.

1. All members of Forces A, B, C, D, E, F, G, and H, will report fully equipped for battle to a point designated by their respective Commanders.

FORCE A: This Force is formed by personnel residing in Site # 6. They will assemble in this Site (Operations Map #1) and will move by the most direct route and the fastest means available to defended locality # 1 (Operations Map # 1). They will defend all installations and aircraft within range of this position. If not engaged they will be prepared to move mainly to support or flank the positions of Forces B, C, or E.

FORCE A: This Force is formed by personnel residing in Site # 6.
(RESERVE) They will assemble in this Site (Operations Map # 1) and will move by the most direct route and the fastest means available to Reserve locality # 1 (Operations Map # 1). They will be prepared to move into Force A's position or support or flank this Force.

FORCE B: This Force is formed by personnel residing in Site # 1. They will assemble in this Site (Operations Map # 1) and will move by the most direct route and the fastest means available to defended locality # 2 (Operations Map # 1). They will defend all installations and aircraft within range of this position. If not engaged they will be prepared to move mainly to support or flank the positions of Forces A, C, or E.

FORCE B: This Force is formed by personnel residing in Site # 1.
(RESERVE) They will assemble in this Site (Operations Map # 1) and will move by the most direct route and the fastest means available to Reserve locality #2 (Operations Map # 1). They will be prepared to move into Force B's position or support or flank this Force.

FORCE C: This Force is formed by personnel residing in Site # 5. They will assemble in this Site (Operations Map # 1) and will move by the most direct route and the fastest means available to defended locality # 3 (Operations Map # 1). They will defend all installations and aircraft within range of this position. If not engaged they will be prepared to move mainly to support or flank the positions of Forces A, B, or E.

FORCE C: This Force is formed by personnel residing in Site # 5.
(RESERVE) They will assemble in this Site (Operations Map # 1) and will move by the most direct route and the fastest means available to Reserve locality # 3 (Operations Map # 1). They will be prepared to move into Force C's position or support or flank this Force.

FORCE D: 16 men will man .50 caliber AA guns #1, #2, #3, #4, #5, #6, #7, #8 (Operations Map # 1) and will provide anti-aircraft Defense. When not engaged in Air Defense, they will lend support to the Ground Forces if needed. The remainder of Force D will man all 303 caliber machine guns available on the perimeter, three of which are mounted on the Shooting Butts. All .50 cal. AA guns assigned to this Force will be manned while aircraft assemble and take off on Combat or Practice missions and five minutes prior to and during the return of Aircraft from Combat and Practice Missions.

- a. Four Jeeps equipped for .50 cal. machine guns will be manned by personnel from Group Armament while aircraft assemble and take off on Combat or Practice Missions and five minutes prior to and during the return of Aircraft from Combat or Practice Missions. In the event of a Ground Alert, the four Jeeps manned by personnel from Group Armament will report to Battle Headquarters for orders.

FORCE E: This Force will assemble when alerted for Ground Defense, at road intersection in Site # 3, Block # 149 (Operations Map # 1) and will prepare to move out with all possible speed to attack the enemy, moving in trucks by the most direct route to the sector designated by the Commander and attack any enemy formed or attempting to form. It will pay special attention to separation of the enemy from its supplies. If the enemy is already formed and is not vulnerable to attack, they will take the strongest possible position until they are reinforced.

FORCE F: This Force is formed by personnel residing in Site # 2. They will assemble in this Site (Operations Map #1) and will move by the most direct route and fastest means available (preferably by two vehicles which will separate when reaching the perimeter and circumvent going in opposite directions) to man 10 Observation and Sniper positions located from 500 to 600 yard intervals surrounding the entire perimeter from .50 cal. AA gun position # 5 to .50 cal. AA gun position # 3 (Operations Map # 1). They will report all enemy movements to Battle Headquarters and will engage and destroy any enemy attempting to infiltrate the perimeter by means of an individual or small unit or units. They will concentrate their fire on leaders, scouts and any advance echelon of main bodies of the enemy.

FORCE G: This Force will be made up of 32 Armament men, 8 men each from Site # 1, Site # 3, Site # 4, and Site # 5. Men from Site # 1 will proceed with Force B from Site # 1, Men from Site # 3 and # 4 will proceed with Force E from Sites # 3 and # 4, Men from Site # 5 will proceed with Force C from Site # 5. They will proceed to the areas where their Squadron Aircraft are Stationed. They will remove Waist Guns from Grounded Aircraft and mount them in all auxiliary mounts provided for this purpose. When not engaged in Ground to Air Defense, they will lend support to Ground to Ground Defense. Any and all men not assisting men manning auxiliary mounts will man the most effective weapons installed in Grounded Aircraft to meet the existing Situation.

FORCE H:: The Officers in charge of Sites # 1, # 2, # 5, will immediately form a 50 man platoon in each Site. Officer Commanding Site # 1 will form Reserve Force for Force B. Officer Commanding Site # 2 will form Reserve Force for Force A. Officer Commanding Site # 5 will form Reserve Force for Force C. These Reserve Forces when formed and ordered will move to the positions designated, (Operations Map # 1). They will remain at this locality to reinforce defended positions or to take the positions of Forces A, B, or C, in the event they are moved to assist other Units or engage other Areas. The 1776th Ordnance Company will immediately move from Site # 6 to protect Bomb Store Area. (Annex # 5).

All personnel working within the vicinity of the perimeter will bring the weapons with which they are armed to duty at all times and be prepared to protect the installations or aircraft they are nearest to. Personnel on duty at the following installations will report to duty armed:

Communications
Operations
Ordnance
S-2
Control Tower
Hanger # 1
Hanger # 2
Photo Laboratory
Bomb Storage Area

Transportation

Any or other installations vital to Station Operations.

The balance of this Force will take cover and stand by for orders.

ALBERT ALEX,
1st Lt., Air Corps,
Station Defense Officer.

STATION LIFE

RED CROSS

January brought few innovations to the Red Cross Aero Club, but the policy of hospitality and activities went on as usual. The Director Mr Evans put on a program of old-fashioned movies in the old-fashioned style complete with barber shop quartet and planted hecklers in the audience. Some of the reels dated back to 1912 and '13 and starred Mary Pickford and W. S. Hart. The program was cleverly arranged and went over very successfully.

A new program of dances, now very exclusive and confined to fifty couples per time was ushered in at the Aero Club this month. Dances can be arranged any Monday night, the men making their own dates and transportation is free. Thrown in beside is a buffet supper and often as not a few hot licks from the base band. These affaires are held in the Lounge and don't interfere too much with the other goings on.

Sgt Dupraz of the S-2 department should be very enthused over the enthusiasm showed toward his French classes. Heavy attendance is attributed to the combat crews to whom learning French is not just a luxury but very practical in case you have to hide your umbrella under a tree and start hiking out of Occupied Europe some day. Classes are now being held three times a week.

Such interest in the classical music hour (in records at the Aero Club) that the men have started a fund for the purchase of new platters for long hairs. This is one of the first activities of the Club and it has not only kept its original listeners but captured a few of the rug-cutting hearts as well.

During the month the club was inspected by the Division inspectors along with the other installations on the station and proclaimed tops in the theater. Which, of course, made Colonel Harding's commendation very much in order.

Special Services - Athletics

If you think I'm kidding when I say that we've got a couple of good ball clubs wearing the silks of the 100th just listen to this. January 1 - Beat Levenham 23-22 in 5 o'clock league; lost to Horam 25-30 in 6 o'clock league. Then for the rest of the month both teams went undefeated. January 6th were twin victories over Rattlesden, January 13th over Hardwick and Honington, January 29th over Honingtons two teams, January 28th over Framlingham's two teams. So went the month. In competition in the 3d Bomb Division League we are no undefeated in the five o'clock circuit and second in the 6 o'clock. With an eye to Theater recognition and thus world fame, we have only to win in the Division play-off and then hustle through the ETO championships. And I'll give you one good reason why I think it can be done. The blister hangar started its regular basketball league toward the end of this month and with the varsity players keeping in trim and new lights being unveiled in the base league there is no reason why this wealth of material shouldn't pay dividends. The intra-Base League got under way with the 456 Sub Depot beating the 349 Bomb Sq 22-16, and the 28th Station Complement shading the 1776 Ordnance Co 25-14. Games in this league are to be played Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, with Sunday reserved for off-base teams.

On January 11 this base sent a six man team into the 3d Division boxing show at Bury St. Edmonds. Winning four and losing two the team functioned very well. Winners were Glen Seibel and Grendle by KO's and Atkinson and Altman by decisions, while D'Amico and Noonan lost the nods. Best fight Glen Seibel's KO in which he as victor got off with no less than a broken nose.

The program of motion pictures, liberty runs, USO shows and other Special Service Functions continue.

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- This is war number two for Sergeant Robert J. Machart, 43, of Pittsburg, Pa. a flying photographic technician in ~~in~~ this Group and the Sarg is all out to wind up the unfinished business that was left over from the last one.

Sgt. MacHart, whose wife Mrs Florence Machart, lives at 208 East Ohio St, N.S., Pittsburg, Pa, was a member of the Fourteenth Field Artillery and was stationed at Fort Sill, Okla during World War I. He was a "burch rivate rear rank".

The sergeant is on call whenever his Heavy Bombardment Group requires his services as an aerial photographer. So far he has only been called upon to take pictures of formations and has never been given an opportunity to make an "operational mission". This is not to the Sergeant's liking. He wants to get into the action that goes on in the air battles upstairs over Germany and Occupied Europe and is hoping he will get a call to go along on a combat mission soon. In civilian life the Sgt is a bar-tender and in this capacity he is also a member of Local 188 of the Bar Tenders Union of the AFofL in Pittsburg. The Sgt is one of the three elected trustees of his Union.

Sgt MacHart was bar tender and Steward of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Club, in Wilkinsburg, a suburb of Pittsburg, Pa, for many years before and up to his entry into the Air Forces in September 1943.

Asked which he liked best the Air Forces or the Field Artillery, the Sergeant by-passed the question pointing out that both were vital branches of the service. However, he did admit that in the old days the field artillery boasted a large number of horses and and he agreed that it is easier to sweep up after a Flying Fortress/As a matter of fact, the Sergeant does not sweep. His weapon is a camera but since he is on "flying status" he also knows how to operate the heavy 50 calibre machine guns of the Fort, just in case.

His ambition is to get a good picture of Berlin, Germany, with the flames coming up and the bombs going down --- straight down on top of the Nazi Dictator with the catspur mustache.

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- Tech Sergeant Richard O. Dettweiler, right waist gunner of a Flying Fortress who expects very soon to complete his operational tour with the Eighth AAF, has two principal ambitions at the moment. One: to become a fighter pilot; two: to see his wife Rosemary, and their daughter, Dixie Jean. Dixie was six weeks old the 1st time her Dad saw her. Now she's practically a year old, and the Sergeant anticipates changes in her appearance.

Sgt Dettweiler's experiences in the ETO have been many and varied, and he expects to have plenty to tell Dixie Jean after she has learned to talk a little more plainly and appreciate that her Dad is a hero. The sergeant comes from Kansas City where his family are now living. He attended East High School, and was president of the Literary Club while a student there. He also became a devoted admirer of Thoreau and the native philosopher's theory of life in general.

When he completes his engagements with the Luftwaffe which will be soon, Sgt. Dettweiler hopes to be accepted for pilot training. He wants to pilot one of those P-47's which have become very dear to him in his role as P-17 gunner.

He intends to name his Dixie Jean.

SECRET

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- No one ever handed Tech Sgt Harold Stearns, a travel agency brochure saying "spend your birthday over beautiful Osnabruck" but that's where he spent it, viewing the scenery, mostly cloud effects from the top turret of a flying fortress, one of many that the eighth AAF sent out on a strength through precision bombing jaunt.

T/Sgt Stearns, the son of Mr & Mrs Jaxk Stearns, of 23 Schneider Place, Passaic, New Jersey reported a happy birthday. "The flak was close but our escort was closer, and the bombs pin pointed the target just fine" he said.

It was the sergeant's twenty-first birthday and the most eventful natal day he had ever celebrated. "Now I'm old enough to vote" he said, thoughtfully adding a--- "if Congress will let me."

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

A4
AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England --- 1st Lt. Charles W. Terry, a member of the intelligence staff at this Flying Fortress base, finds that the war against the Nazis is taking on an extremely personal tinge, and is coming to the reluctant conclusion that a day of only 24 hours is a bit too short.

Lt. Terry who hails from Montgomery and is a personnel administrator for the state of Alabama in civilian life, went thru his busiest day in the army recently, in which he filled almost as many official posts as Pooch Bah in The Mikado.

First, as S-2 officer, it came his turn to brief the combat gunners of the group for a daylight attack on secret and extremely important targets in northwestern France. This he did, and returned to his office to discover that an application he had filed long ago for permission to fly on a mission as an observer had been granted - and that he was to fly the mission he had just briefed.

Terry flew the mission, forthwith, selecting for his pilot 2/Lt Mark Cope from Two Ribers, Wis. Cope bedded the S-2 officer down in the nose, showed him about the parachute, and left him to his own devices.

"I suppose I should have told him that it was my 13th mission" said Cope afterward, "but I dddn't have the heart".

At any rate, the mission was successful, and Lt. Terry returned to the base just in time to sit down and interrogate the crew he had been flying with, and seven oreight others as to the mission he had just accompanied.

Naturally it also happened to be Lt. Terry's turn to compile the statistical report on the mission which higher headquarters requires from every intelligence section. So the good Lt. spent his evening struggling with figures on bomb loads, axis of attack, enemy fighter tactics, flak, altitudes, and estimated times of arrival.

He went to bed at midnight, conscious of rather a full day - only to be awakened at 2 a.m. by an emissary from headquarters. There was another mission on the fire, and it was Lt. Terry's turn to brief. So the lieutenant dressed wearily, dragged himself down to the briefing room and did his duty again.

That the mission was scrubbed is the clincher for a perhaps too literal illustration of the "why" for the ETO cry "My achin' Back."

ADMINISTRATION

3d BOMBARDMENT DIVISION INSPECTION

From January 3 - 9, an inspection party headed by Colonel Fargo and Major Prince made the annual inspection of installations and functions on this Station. As an entirety the Base was rated very satisfactory, by units and sections it was rated as follows.

Inspection of Records and Reports revealed the following deficiencies and irregularities. There was no Unit personnel section, but the records of the several units were being kept in Station Headquarters. Lack of space was given as the reason. Service Records showed examples of almost every mistake but on a whole were satisfactory. , WD AGO 20's, 201 files, form 28's were found very satisfactory. In case of Morning Reports it was recommended that AR 345-400 be studied by responsible persons. Mistakes in the Sick Report were eradications, and faulty entries in the "Line of Duty" column. Files were found in good order though correspondence files used manila folders instead of the prescribed envelopes. On a whole the records and reports were judged very satisfactory.

The S-1 section under Lt. Hosford was found functioning very efficiently though it was recommended the the Unit Personnel set-up be used and that Lt Burke ass't statistical officer assist in S-1 in addition to his S-3 duties. Sections handling records, awards, courts-martial files, officers 66-1, and 201 files were found very satisfactory. The postal section functioned smoothly and it was recommended that receipt for money given postal orderly by unit clerks be initiated. In the adjutants section and message center several irregularities in filing of secret and restricted material were noted, the Sergeant Majors office disorderly, and a satisfactory rating given.

Major Shaw's S-2 section was rated very satisfactory. Security in building, in files, were noted as well handles. It was recommended that valuables of crewmen be kept by the Squadron adjutants rather than S-2.

S-3 under Lt. Col. Kidd was rated very satisfactory. It was recommended that ratings of higher quality be allowed for Link Trainer men for whom there is no T/O.

S-4 received the rating of excellent. Captain McClain's files were excellent and complete, his requisitions for shortages of OEL, QM, C of E, and Signal Equipment in and up to date.

The buildings and areas were exceptionally well policed. Quarters were found to be generally overcrowded, and combat crew barracks not up to par. Rating - very satisfactory.

Quartermaster was rated excellent, salvage satisfactory and recommended that it should be incorporated under Qm. The unit supplies were found orderly and the records in accordance with existing regulations. Some overage and shortages were noted, that had not been turned in or requisitioned. Sq. CO's

Supply officers, and Supply clerks were told to produce and familiarize themselves with ETOUSA Cir 26, 1942; SOS 18,33,61,72, 78,87,97, 1943; 8AF Memo's 65-2,65-3,75-19,75-19A 1943. Rating was very satisfactory.

Post Exchange was commended highly on its stock including many articles out of the ordinary, and appearance. Small discrepancies in bookkeeping, and price extensions due to use of British currency were noted. Rating was excellent.

The Officers Club was rated satisfactory with recommendations that a bookkeeper be hired, stocks of liquor be insured, and general policing of building area be stressed.

Morale was ruled excellent due to the superior rating of the Red Cross Aero club on this station. The aero club was found complete in all of its contributions to the men. The chapel and work of Chaplains Teska and Phillips were rated excellent.

The four messes on the Station were inspected thoroughly. At the consolidated mess, which feeds 1800 men through four serving lines the only criticisms were of wet floors and certain amount of dirt on lights and other objects. Rating as a whole was excellent. Combat EM Mess was rated very satisfactory, but criticised for dirtiness of food handlers and excessive waste. The new combat officers mess was rated excellent, though the inspection revealed that too many men were being used in operation, necessitated perhaps by family style feeding. The Ground Officers mess, with its individual serving, long wait, and excessive waste was rated unsatisfactory.

The station ordnance section under Captain Major was found to operate in an excellent manner. A complaint was received that qualified mechanics were being used for menial chores around the base when they were needed in Medium Maintenance.

It was decided that military courtesy and discipline would be improved. Saluting must be stressed more; dog tags were found to be not worn in too many cases. Heavy flying equipment was noted being worn by some officers around the base.

The Military Police Co. was found under T/O strength by some twenty men and it was recommended that it be brought up to strength. Under Lt. Temple, Provost Marshal it was rated excellent.

Chemical Warfare was commended as a model set-up; rated as excellent.

Station Defense was rated satisfactory. On a practice against attack 40% of the men were noted without gas masks and the method of notifying personnel to report to battle stations was found unsatisfactory.

The Station Dispensary was judged excellent. Records were adequate and up to date. Building was orderly and well policed. Recommendation for more men and X-ray equipment was suggested by inspectors.

Transportation office's records and report were found good. Nightly dispersion of 50% of vehicles was noted. There was no permanent assignment of drivers. It was recommended that the dis-Cipline of the drivers be put in the hands of the Transportation officer.

The Inspecting Party found need for publicity of economy measures on this Station. The excessive use of supplies, food, transportation, fuel, water, and electricity must be cut down.

TRANSFER OF KEY PERSONNEL

Per Paragraph 12, Special Order 4, 4 January 1944, Major KARL STANDISH is releived from duty as Station Adjutant, and appointed Station Ground Exectuive vice Lt. Col. HAROLD E. DUNGAN. Per Par 13, same SO, Captain HORACE L. VARIAN, JR, takes over duties as Base Adjutant. Captain Varian's place as adjutant of the 350th Sq, is taken by Lt Teinken. On authority of 3d Bomb Division, Lt. Col. Dungan is transfered to 49th Service Group, per SO 11, 3d Bomb Division.

On 16 January 1944, Major Benjamin P. Rambeau was transfered with the cadre of the 83rd Service Group.

DIARY OF 351st BOMBARDMENT SQUADRON, 100 BOMB GROUP,
FOR MONTH OF JANUARY 1944.

Events of almost every description, both of a favorable and unfavorable nature, marked the opening month of 1944 in the ETO to members of the 351st Bombardment Squadron, 100 Bomb Group, according to records of the squadron historian. A close study of activities reveals that January was the period when at least four outstanding events developed, while in other phases of activity it rated on a par, generally speaking, with preceding months.

Most members of the squadron will probably agree that the No. 1 event was the improvement project providing for the enlargement and remodelling of the picket post building which houses the orderly room. The other three important happenings, all of a pleasant aspect, included the unprecedented feat of all planes returning safely from missions over enemy territory, the excellent rating accorded all departments by 3rd Bomb Division inspectors, and issuance for the first time of 7-day furloughs.

Before discussing any of the leading events, it should be interesting to take a quick glance at the less important occurrences by reviewing them in headline fashion--Lt. Maurice Zetlan killed, three others severely injured in takeoff crash; Train wreck kills Cpl. Vernon Gaffron; Ordnance and Armor personnel load bombs of greater danger; OCS training in states awarded M/Sgt. Dan Milakovich; T/Sgt. Trafford Curry returns to squadron for visit after escaping from enemy territory; Sgt. Arthur M. Lenfast dies from lack of oxygen while flying on accredited mission; Lt. Richard Elliott finishes 25th mission and returns to states; and S/Sgt. Roy Urich killed by enemy flak.

A larger quarters for the orderly room had been on the list of great needs for many months. Efforts of the commanding officer and adjutant to get the base utilities unit to make this improvement proved unsuccessful because of the reluctance on the part of this construction and maintenance organization to do more than original plans specified. Finally an agreement was reached whereby the base would furnish the necessary building materials, and the squadron the required labor. The long-awaited project began Friday morning, January 21, with S/Sgt. Phrone Stevens and Sgt. Elmer Musolf filling the needs for skilled workmen. It took exactly one week for its completion.

Today the picket post hut is 12 feet longer than formerly, providing the additional space needed for making the orderly room an ideal working quarters. For the first time since being in the ETO, an enlisted man or officer may speak to the commanding officer or adjutant without others in the building knowing the nature of his conversation. This feature was made possible by partitioning an office for the CO and adjutant from the rest of the orderly room. The administrative personnel should be able to do their work faster and more efficiently because their office area has been tripled in size. The same holds true for the mail orderly who had cramped quarters prior to the improvement. The front entrance to the picket post has been altered in such a way that one may walk inside without being pinched by an outside door which opened the wrong way. Briefly, one might say in conclusion that the building program will arouse a greater interest on the part of the squadron members in coming to the orderly room regularly for reading the bulletin board and for having any administrative needs handled that require attention.

Very encouraging in the way of events was the return of all bombers belonging to the squadron from raids over enemy territory. Though only seven recognized missions were launched against enemy targets during the month, a decline in the number for December, it was extremely heartening that all ships returned to their base--a feat never accomplished during any previous month of operations.

Another highlight of January was the high rating made by all the various departments during the 7-day inspection conducted by the 3rd Bomb Division. To both the delight of officers and enlisted men was the report that all sections and departments were performing their tasks in a most satisfactory manner. This was the first thorough-going inspection made by higher authorities since the squadron's arrival in the ETO, and the release of this welcomed announcement brought smiles and reassurance to everyone concerned.

The other outstanding event came somewhat as a surprise after there had been a several months' delay in its realization. The joyful tiding of a 7-day furlough was to be gained for the first time in the ETO by men, tired both physically and mentally because of the constant hard grind they experience in their daily military work. The initial leaves were issued on January 16. This extended period of time for outside visits will enable the officers and enlisted men to travel to points throughout the British Isles whose distances made a 48-hour pass impractical.

Tragic occurrences were not to be averted entirely during a monthly period when most things seemed to be sailing smoothly, and as a result January chalked up four fatalities and three severe-injury cases. The death claiming the life of Cpl. Vernon L. Gaffron, Kenosha, Wisc., came as a most unexpected shock to Gaffron, a sheet-metal worker, who had been with the squadron almost from the time of its activation, met a gruesome death in a passenger train collision in the late afternoon of January 16 on the outskirts of that city at which time a number of other American soldiers were killed.

The remaining fatalities were those of combat personnel. An early-morning takeoff January 24 proved disastrous as the bomber piloted by Lt. Arch J. Drummond nose-dived and crashed a short distance from the base, bringing instantaneous death to Lt. Maurice Zetlan, navigator of Salem, Mass., and severe injuries to Lt. Frank McGuire, bombardier, and T/Sgt. Talbert E. Spenhoff, radio operator. The two seriously-injured victims were immediately sent to the 231st Station Hospital for care and treatment. Both are reported to be recovering as well as can be expected. The other members of the crew miraculously escaped serious injury. The ill-fated Fortress on crashing was suddenly converted into a mass of flames resulting in its total loss.

Failure of an oxygen mask to function properly while flying on a mission over hostile terrain cost the life of Sgt. Arthur M. Lenfast, ball-turret gunner on Lieutenant Drummond's crew. His death was the first casualty for the month, occurring around noon time of January 4. Sergeant Lenfast, who lived in Reading, Mass., was a relatively new member of the squadron, being among the newcomers of early December.

S/Sgt. Roy Urich, Los Angeles, tail gunner on Lt. Frank Valesh's crew, died in action January 24 after being hit by enemy flak. He was also a newcomer to the squadron. Other members of the plane's crew returned safely from this raid.

The third-injury case was suffered by S/Sgt. Thomas R. Chappell who received a severe leg wound from flak bursts while flying over enemy territory January 21.

Chappell is now in a London hospital where he is reported to be gradually improving. This ball-turret gunner volunteered for combat duty after arriving in the ETO and had 14 missions to his credit following completion of his last raid.

Introduction of a more-sensitive type of bomb with an intricate fuse assembly added greater peril to the ever-dangerous tasks of the ordnance and armor personnel on several occasions during the month. The men of these sections, already overburdened with work because of the big increase in the number of planes to load, were still able to carry on with their work in an efficient manner.

January in providing unsuitable flying weather for the most part caused an increased amount of indignation among aviation mechanics and armor and ordnance personnel as more scheduled missions were scrubbed than during any prior month. These men were often bitter over the situation when after working all night in the cold, damp atmosphere, a planned raid would be cancelled because of a sudden change in weather conditions. Under such circumstances, they felt that their efforts had been in vain and that the war would not be shortened in the least as a result of their latest work.

A periodic event of major importance for safeguarding the health of squadron members brought the customary reaction of trivial fear when its announcement was made. The station dispensary was the site of feverish activity on the afternoon of January 29 as 156 officers and enlisted men reported for various kinds of inoculations.

Additional floor space to ease a problem of congestion and a convenient front entrance were provided in a project for the squadron operations office. The improvement, completed in a few days, was made possible by dismantling the interior double-door entrance setup which in turn added useful space to the office. An outside shelter opening to the office with its one-door feature was constructed to provide a suitable entrance.

Interesting events regarding the activities of a number of squadron members were among items of note during the 31-day period. Lt. Richard Elliott, who joined the squadron in the ETO last July as a member of a combat replacement crew, finished his tour of operations January 24 and three days later left for the states to get that well-deserved furlough with parents and friends before receiving a new assignment.

M/Sgt. Dan Milakovich, one of the squadron's three veteran flight chiefs, had a foremost ambition become an actuality when orders were issued sending him back to the United States to attend OCS for engineering. This move, authorized January 22, gave the happy sergeant extra time to visit home folks before reporting for OCS.

There was great surprise in the squadron when T/Sgt. Trafford Curry, combat engineer, who had been missing in action for a number of months, returned for a brief visit before departing for the states. Curry, who parachuted safely from a crashing Fortress while over enemy-held territory, managed to avoid capture by contacting friendly civilians. He lived among them for quite some time before slipping away and returning by undisclosed methods to England.

Good news to the officers and enlisted men affected were promotions for 12 officers and 55 enlisted men. Among the EM's, 10 combat crew members received two boosts in grade during the month.

Officers elevated in rank were Albert Dahlgren and Robert L. Hughes from first lieutenancy to captaincy, and 2nd Lts. James M. Cathey, Frederick D. Fuller, George W. Brannon, Merrill L. Rish, Arch J. Drummond, Lucius G. Lacy, Norman L. Chapman, Donald S. Davis, Alexander Park and John F. Massol to first lieutenants.

Enlisted personnel appointed technical sergeants after having been hiked previously to staff sergeants during January included Sidney Cary, Walter S. Austin, George E. Madden, William T. Westley, Clarence H. Wood, Jr., Talbert E. Spenhoff, William F. Teaff, Asa J. Spengler, Donald B. Hammond and Chester Carknard. Others elevated from staff to tech sergeant were Hugh A. Smallwood, George F. Danehower, Milton Scharf, Howard T. Skaggs, Jr., Bernard G. Siegel and William Eresman.

Those named staff sergeants include Joseph A. Howell, Arthur J. Pallas, Robert L. McKimmy, Robert L. Greenleaf, Charles F. Elliott, Joseph G. Kelley, Henry A. Markowski, Richard A. Armstrong, Leon E. Hill, George E. Dobbs, Armand C. Burt, Raymond J. Mitchell, Frank A. Yzenas, Durand E. Hutchings, Chester L. Powell, Angus Alsup, John R. Pendleton, Nicholas Perovich, Henry W. Johnson, Winfred C. Williams, Newman E. Garmon, Herman H. Hillburn, William W. Wright, Cuthrie H. Head, Chester P. Coulam, Jack L. Shope, Oliver N. McCartney, Edward R. Silverstone, Virgil H. Warders and Donald L. Blair.

Sergeant stripes were awarded to Sidney Graboyes, Dewey Essary, Robert M. Myers and Daniel J. Maddrea. Among corporal newcomers are Walter A. Case, Henry E. Maulick and Walter Rudowski.

Four officer newcomers and eight enlisted men were transferred into the squadron mainly for the purpose of replacing others who had left the squadron for various reasons. New officers are 2nd Lts. Norman L. Rasmussen, Frederick G. Spence, John W. Dewey and Edward Handorf. The enlisted men include T/Sgt. George N. Ofiesh, S/Sgts. Thaddeus Cybulski, Henry C. Verdeur and Charles H. Ford, Sgts. Allen D. Horton, John L. Willsey, John J. Gverovich, T/5 Michael J. Humenick, and Pvt. Robert A. Buccino.

Four EM's who had been members of the squadron for a long time were transferred during January. They are Sgt. Jack Rogers and Pfc. Noel Varnell who went to the 83rd Service Group Headquarters Cadre, and Sgts. Joseph Murphy and Floyd C. Dann, assigned to 28th Station Complement Squadron.

SQUADRON JOURNAL FOR MONTH OF JANUARY, 1944.

JAN 1.

The New Year came in quietly for this Squadron-- no practice nor operational mission, no marked festive spirit.

JAN. 2.-- Routine duties.

JAN. 3.-- Routine duties.

JAN. 4.--

Six of our planes went to the German port of Kiel; all returned, no casualties. Flak and fighters opposed, but our fighter escort was on the job. Lt. Homer Tripp, one of our veterans (Regensburg, a Channel ditching, and other close calls with death), finished his operational tour today.

JAN. 5--

This was the day of the celebrated "nuts and bolts" mission, when our Group, led by Major Bennett, with Lt. Joseph Armanini as his bombardier, found the primary target too badly overcast for bombing, and in cruising about in search of worthy game, came upon a clear objective in an important bolt works at Nuess, Germany. Lt. Armanini spotted this "target of opportunity", and smacked it with his bomb load, to be followed by the rest of the Group. Newspaper accounts, widely published, quoted Lt. Armanini as having said "My, my ! " when he spied this fine mark, but he quoted his remark as something quite different.

JAN. 6-- Routine duties.

JAN. 7-- Six of our planes bombed the important aircraft industries at Ludwigs-haven, Germany, and all returned, despite bitter opposition from Jerry's flak and fighters. Capt. Sumner H. Reeder, one of the heroes of our tragic mission of 6 September, 1943, made his first operational flight since that time, when he was wounded. Today, he got a warm reception on his return to battle; piloting the Pathfinder plane, he narrowly escaped a hit from a 20 mm. shell, and his plane was considerably shot up.

JAN. 8-- Routine.

JAN. 9--Routine.

JAN. 10--Routine.

JAN. 11--

Omnabruck, Germany, was target today for our Squadron and Group. Six planes went for the 349th; all returned without untoward incident.

JAN. 12-- Routine.

JAN. 13.--Routine.

JAN. 14--

A "milk run" mission to the French coast; six of our ships went and returned, having been virtually unopposed.

JAN. 15--Routine.

JAN. 16-- Furloughs started, first granted in our outfit overseas. Three men left today for their seven days' vacation; one of them stretched it to a month-- AWOL.

JAN. 17--18--19--20-- Routine; no missions, probably because of foul weather.

JAN. 21--

Combat flying resumed, with another blow at the mysterious French coast target termed "NO BALL"; we sent ten planes, and they all got back, but this was far from being the expected milk run. Flak was intense, and every one of the 349th ships was punctured by fragments. Punctured, too, was the thigh of Lt. Paul A. Levy, one of bombardiers. His wound was not dangerous, but kept him in hospital for some weeks.

JAN. 22--23--Routine.

JAN. 24--

Nine of our planes took off on a mission over Germany, but were recalled, because of closing weather, before they reached the target. However, crew members got credit for a sortie, as they had penetrated well into enemy occupied territory, and saw some flak.

JAN. 25--26--27--28-- Routine.

JAN. 29--

Another lick at Frankfurt, Germany, today, with eight planes of the 349th participating. All returned, without having encountered <sup>u</sup> any very severe opposition. Our fighter escort, going in to unprecedented depths of Germany, functioned well.

JAN. 30--

Brunswick, Germany, today for seven of our planes--another fairly uneventful run, considering it went so far into the Reich. All our planes and men came home unscathed.

JAN. 31-- The month ended on a quiet day, with only routine activities by the Squadron.
